CARMEL CELLIST—Charles Armstrong will appear with the Monterey County Symphony Youth Orchestra on November 27 when it presents its first concert of the season in the Salinas High School auditorium at 3 p.m. A student at Carmel Middle School, he is the son of Milton and Grace Armstrong and has played with the Youth Orchestra for three years.

Six other young Carmelites are among the 50 Youth Orchestra players. They are Gayle Campbell, Mary Sprung and Sally Pastula, violinists; Evelyn Hughes, flutist; Mindy Rayne, violist; and Greg Sprung, member of the brass section.

ILLEGAL SIGNS

A campaign to enforce Carmel's sign ordinance is being waged by the city's chief building inspector, Frederick R. Cunningham. By means of a leaflet, he is notifying all establishments in the business district that any signs not approved by the Carmel Planning Commission are illegal and must be removed by December 1. These include paper or other temporary signs attached to exterior walls, windows and doors, and which are NOT permitted but are appearing regularly in the commercial district.

NEW POLICE BADGES

Carmel police and policewomen's uniforms have been brightened up with a colorful touch this month—green, golf and white shoulder patches bearing a reproduction of the city seal, which shows the Carmel Mission. Chief Klaumann says everyone's happy with the new addition to their olive drab.

HAPPY THANKSGIVING TO EVERYONE

Rotary Sponsors Music Program For Elementary Schoolchildren

The Carmel Rotary Club has come up with a way to "fill a void in the community and provide a cultural program that fits into the spirit of Carmel," according to projects chairman Howard Bucquet.

His organization has been evaluating various community projects for a considerable period of time in order to find an area in which the Rotary Club could contribute a valuable community service. The resulting project will be launched right after the first of the year when a music program is initiated in cooperation with the Monterey County Symphony Association and the Carmel Unified School District.

Designed to reach children from kindergarten through the sixth grade, it will involve the presenta-

August Nieto A Man With Ideas, Says Carmel's Been Good To Him

by Carol Van Den Berg

Laughing, August Nieto said, "We arrived in Carmel on Halloween in 1947. The night was dark, the moon full. People were dressed in weird costumes. Dolores Street was closed for a big Halloween pageant given by the Kiwanis Club. Fall was in the air. The spirit of the city was bewitching!"

AUGUST NIETO

Still reminiscing, he added, "my wife, Louisa, and I spent our honeymoon in Carmel in 1935. At that time, we loved it so much, we decided to make Carmel our home some day. Eight years later I had my real estate broker's license in Long Beach and my wife's hobby was experimenting and developing gourmet Mexican dishes for our Long Beach entertaining. Somehow or other, we decided to pull up roots, move to Carmel, and open a Mexican restaurant—Su Vecino (your neighbor). It was first located in the former home of Marshal Gus Englund, Carmel's first policeman. And we found Gus's old, slightly-bent night stick under the house. We treasure it highly."

Four years ago, the Nietos sold Su Vecino restaurant, and now Augie is solely in the real estate business.

They owned Su Vecino for 14 years. It started out as a delicatessen. Then it evolved into a restaurant.

"At first, Louisa and I operated it completely by ourselves," Augie recalls. "In the morning, we would make all the tacos, etc, and put them in the refrigerator ready for business. Then Louisa would be waitress and cashier while I did the cooking and dishwashing. Our restaurant kept growing, and we couldn't leave it. We ended up with a working staff of ten people. And only twice, during the entire time we owned the restaurant, did we have to close up because of lack of enough food."

Now a prominent real estate broker in Carmel, August Nieto is past president of the Lions Club, past president of the Carmel Business Association, and past City of Carmel recreation commissioner. He also has served on the executive committee of SCRAMP.

In discussing his real estate activities, he stated, "Fred Klepich and I organized the Carmel Craft Studios where local artists could display and sell their goods. We formed a company and the artists became stockholders. It was the first of its kind that I know of."

When asked if he dabbled in the arts, he replied, "I'm not an artist myself, but I've long been a patron of the arts. And I don't know how many art galleries I've helped become established in Carmel through the real estate end of things."

Discussing his preference in building, he said, "I like a building to be functional and appeal to the community. We always have regional architects design our buildings. The new Shell station at San Carlos and Fifth is an example. I convinced the Shell people to develop a service station that would be in harmony with the area. Now the Shell people are hiring regional architects for their other service stations. Carmel Square, and the first condominium in this area—the Pine Terrace Apartments—we put together."

Nieto was born in Mexico. When he was six, his family moved to Fresno. He attended schools there, also Fresno State College. Mrs. Nieto comes from Fresno, too.

"It took me three years to complete it but I built Louisa's and my first home in Fresno out of adobe bricks. And I made all the bricks myself! The bricks were each 21 inches thick—and very heavy. The house had eight rooms."

Nieto explained he had spent nine months in Mexico and while there learned to make adobe bricks the way the Mexicans do.

"Building a house is quite an experience!" he said enthusiastically.

Augie and Louisa Nieto have two children, Margaret and Katherine, who attended Carmel schools. Married now, they both

Bill Hubbard Named Del Mesa Manager

William H. Hubbard has been named general manager of Del Mesa Carmel, the $10 million adult community under construction in Carmel Valley.

The appointment, effective December 1, was announced by E. J. "Mike" Sullivan, president of Carmel-Hawaii Investors, Inc., developers of the 289-home community.

Hubbard returns to the Monterey Peninsula where, from 1949 until earlier this year, he was manager of Del Monte Lodge. Since May he has been resident manager at Jackson Lake Lodge in the Grand Teton National Park, Wyoming.

LINES FROM

THE STUDIO

Returning from Big Sur late Sunday afternoon, a Carmel visitor chanced upon a disabled fox trying to cross the road. Prompted, we gather, by having seen "The Little Foxes" at The Studio, he placed the docile animal on the front seat and drove post haste to our door. The noble tradition of the theatre, of course, is to cope with any emergency, but we confess to sighs of relief when Mrs. May removed the handsome beast to the SPCA shelter. We intend to think twice before doing Ionesco's "Rhinoceros." Meanwhile, only three weekends remain to attend our distinguished production of "The Little Foxes" with Betty Fowlston and Gertrude Chappell. Electrifying! $5.50 for dinner and show, $2.75 for show only, each Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Don't miss it!

Arthur Porter

New Feature

The Pine Cone's Travel Section makes its third appearance today. A much traveled Carmelite, Arthur Porter, is in charge of this feature. The second installment of Caviar For Breakfast, an account of one of his trips, is printed on this page. He is also opening a competition on the subject, My Most Interesting Trip, details of which appear in this issue. Readers are asked, too, to send in questions for the Travel Tips column. These will be answered by Peninsula travel agents.

Caviar For Breakfast

PART II

Last week Arthur Porter told how he had discovered a new way to travel from China to Germany. It was going Hard Class on the Trans-Siberian Railway which served caviar for breakfast. This week his story continues.

By the time we reached Poland I had a feeling not only of getting out of Russia but sitting in an efficiently run train and consuming large cups of wonderful coffee and bacon and eggs for breakfast instead of caviar and glasses of tea.

In Berlin I gave the chambermaid of the hotel I stayed in my box of foodstuffs which had remained untouched due to the generosity of my German friends. It was at a time when such a gift was most welcome. I do not remember what happened to my much appreciated "Li-lo," mattress.

Then back in London established in a Regency house with my Chinese furnishings and a job with Lloyd's, but shuttling back and forth to the City complete with the Times, a furled umbrella and Homburg hat began to make me feel antlike and anyway my feet itched! The Chinese furnishings and a large shipment of Chinese art that I had sent via Suez began to look like "open sesame" to further peregrinations, so I sold the lot and went off to Switzerland for a whole winter on some of the proceeds where I skied happily from morning to night. But Conscience with a capital C began tapping me imperiously on the shoulder with a severe look and saying "Well, what about doing some work again—and how, and when, and where?" It was then I remembered my old friend the Trans-Siberian with Marco Polo's Cathay at the other end of the line. So in the Autumn of 1939, just before the outbreak of war, I was again aboard heading back to China. This time Hard Class was full of Russian Army officers. I had three in my compartment who seemed to play the balalaika, sing and smoke in the middle of the night and sleep when they felt like it. They were pleasant and polite to me. When I first entered the compartment, a smart and good looking officer saluted me and said "I am Captain Ivanovitch of the Red Army and would like to exchange language lessons with you." This I readily agreed to but I think we were both poor students.

To Lilli—With Love

Fortunately, a few "old" pros turned up along with other friends Saturday night for the painting party at the Sundial Lodge quarters where Lilli (Mrs. F. Robert) Smith and Char (Mrs. Howard "Bud") Allen will open their fascinating new shop early next month. Gallons of paint were splashed, rolled or brushed onto walls, ceilings and trim while electrical wiring, ladders, furniture and the participants' far-out garb got tangled and untangled. Pauses for critical inspection of handiwork allowed time, now and then, for refreshments, also removal of excess paint from hair, bald domes and Bob Smith's cherished gold brogues.

The fun of helping in the project was shared by the Roy Woods, artists Colden Whitman, Sam Colburn and Glen Minshall, also Betsy Whitman, the Frank Lloyds, Jan Niebel and Jane Vial. The two owners' husbands, understandably, did yeoman duty.

The shop, to be known simply as "Lilli's," will combine the taste and talents of its owners and will feature the amusing and whimsical fashions designed by Lilli. Imaginative accessories, including jewelry and utilitarian or "fun" items, are being produced for their order exclusively. They will also carry exceptional yardage.

The Herricks Are Here

Dr. Francis Herrick, retired Mills College history professor, and his wife are here from Oakland to occupy their cottage over the Thanksgiving holidays. Mariam (White) Herrick contributed the fine story about the Sunset School of 50 years ago for the Carmel anniversary edition of the Pine Cone.

Dr. Herrick is executive secretary of the Western College Association, with offices at Mills, and establishes accreditation teams for colleges in California, Hawaii and Guam. He is currently setting up a group for the University of California at Santa Cruz.

Festive Gathering

Over the freeways and through the air, to grandmother's house they come, and it will be a festive family gathering at the home of Mrs. Julian von Meier. A big bird is ready for the oven and there will also be a succulent Virginia ham in remembrance of Mrs. von Meier's paternal ancestors who gave thanks long ago in Virginia, where they settled in 1610.

Coming from San Francisco will be John and Karen Christian, with Brian, Adrienne, Seaneen and John II; and from their home in Castro Valley will be A. Carol and Kathie McKinney, with Erin, Gael, Kristi and Carol IV. If his duties at UCLA will permit him, Dr. Kurt von Meier will fly up from Los Angeles.

Also participating in the celebration will be Mrs. James Campbell of Walnut Creek, the cousin of Dr. A. Carol McKenney of Pebble Beach, with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Schock of Mill Valley, and their three young sons.

The rafters should ring!

Naval Postgraduate School.

Another newcomer is Steven Richard Ferrarini, who arrived at Community Hospital on November 8. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ferrarini of Carmel.

PARTY PLANS . . .

By Phyllis Jervey

Classic Fruit Cakes and Plum Puddings

It isn't too early to begin planning holiday fruit cakes and plum puddings! But we'll get over the Thanksgiving weekend first—then consider the following classic recipes and freeze some ahead for Christmas.

Of romantic importance is the white fruit cake dreamed up by White House pastry chef Ferdinand Louvat for Luci Johnson's wedding cake. Following are the directions for this cake which was chosen because it could be prepared well ahead of time.

LUCI'S WEDDING CAKE

(In home-size proportions)

One and three-quarters cups sifted cake flour; 1 tsp. double acting baking powder; ¼ tsp. salt; ½ cup butter; ¾ cup sugar; 5 eggs, unbeaten; ¾ cup candied pineapple, chopped; 1 cup pecans, chopped; ½ cup seedless raisins, soaked and drained; apple juice; ½ tsp., each, almond and vanilla extract.

A few days before baking the cake, cover raisins with apple juice; let soak in refrigerator until raisins are plump. When ready to bake the cake, drain and spread on paper towel to dry surface moisture. Sift flour once and measure. Add baking powder and salt and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly and add sugar gradually, creaming together until light and fluffy. Add egg whites, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each. Add flour, a little at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Place in a loaf pan which has been greased, lined with heavy paper and greased again. Bake in 300 F. oven about 1 hour and 15 minutes, or until done. For loaf cake, use an 8x4x3 inch pan, which serves 8 to 10 persons.

Christmas Port Fruit Cake
(Makes a 6 lb. cake)

Three cups all-purpose flour, sifted; 1 tsp. baking powder; 1 tsp. salt; 1 tsp., each, powdered cinnamon and mace; ½ tsp., each, powdered nutmeg and allspice; 1 lb. seedless raisins, rinsed with boiling water and drained; ½ lb. dates, cut up with scissors; ½ lb. currants; rinsed with boiling water and drained; 1 lb. prepared glace fruit mix; ½ lb. walnuts or pecans, coarsely chopped; 1 cup shortening; 2 cups brown sugar; 4 eggs, well beaten; ½ cup Port wine; ½ cup grape or currant jelly.

Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt and spices; add fruits and nuts; mix well. Cream shortening and sugar together until fluffy; beat in eggs; add flour-fruit mixture alternately with combined wine and jelly, blending well. Turn into two loaf pans (10x5x3 in.) that have been greased and lined with heavy wrapping paper. Bake in 300 F. oven for about 3 hours, or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks. When cold, peel off wrapping paper and wrap cakes in waxed paper. Store in tightly covered container. An orange or an apple may be stored with the cakes to keep them moist and should be replaced from time to time.

Salinger Plum Pudding

Sift 6 cups flour; prepare and dredge lightly with part of flour the following mixture: ¼-½ lb. chopped suet; 1 lb. seeded dark raisins; 1 lb. currants, washed and dried; 4 lbs. candied fruit, finely chopped. Resift remaining flour with — 1 tbsp. allspice, finely ground; ¼ tbsp. ginger, finely ground; ½ tbsp, each, cloves, nutmeg, cinnamon and mace, finely ground; 1 tsp. salt. Combine the dredged and sifted ingredients. Add 6 egg yolks; 1½ pints dark molasses; 1 pint rum.

Milk should be added to adjust consistency of batter before egg whites are added. Keep in mind that egg white has the effect of changing consistency of batter as a liquid would, so that milk should be added to make batter until it is slightly stiffer than it would be after the egg white is added. The proper consistency is such that the batter can just be poured. Place in a bowl and whip stiff 6 egg whites then fold into batter.

Further details for completing the pudding are as follows: Pour the batter into a greased cloth that is supported in a colander. The cloth should be large enough so that it can be easily gathered and tied. The top of the cloth is tied and the colander is lowered into a deep pot. Water is added until the colander is just submerged. The water in the pot is spiced with the same spices in the pudding. In addition 3 lemons and 3 oranges, sliced, are added to the cooking water. Keep pudding at a gentle boil for 6 hours. Water level must be maintained by adding boiling water. Fat coming to surface is skimmed. After cooking, remove colander from pot. When cooled, untie cloth and peel back. Place a large platter over exposed pudding and invert. Carefully remove colander and peel back cloth. Result is a dome-shaped pudding. It should be covered for at least a week to age. Color will deepen to a dark brown. When pudding is served, place a mound of sugar at top of dome and make a depression in this. Into this pour brandy. Light and reladle the burning brandy over pudding until all alcohol is burned out. The pudding is served with the following.

Hard Sauce

One lb. unsalted (sweet) butter; 1½ cups granulated sugar; brandy to taste (be liberal).

Soften butter (do not melt) and work in sugar. Prior to serving, the sauce may have to be "reworked" to distribute the ingredients uniformly again.

This much loved family recipe for French plum pudding comes from Jehanne Bietry-Salinger Carlson, well known Carmelite. Jehanne told PARTY PLANS that her youngest son, Richard, now professor at the University of Illinois, was until recently the only one in the family still alive who had the secret recipe. The pudding is so delicious that Richard made and carried one with him to Washington for the Kennedy Inaugural when his brother Pierre was presidential press secretary.

Mrs. Carlson tells this story in her own charming and witty way. Richard wheedled the ingredients of the family treasure from Jehanne's French mother, Anna Bietry, who helped Jehanne rear her four small boys in San Francisco.

"My mother never was willing to give out this recipe while she was alive. As a child, Richard was his grandmother's favorite kitchen helper. Since he wanted to emulate her pudding, he decided to watch the process carefully when she made it. Unfortunately, she knew he wanted the recipe and always managed to discover that some ingredient was missing in the middle of making the pudding. At this point she would send him to the store for the missing item. Unfailingly, when Richard got back he would find that his grandmother had 'found' the missing substance and had gone ahead and completed the project."

But she made one tactical error. She never sent him out for the same item twice, so that over a period of about three years, the boy managed to participate in enough action in the kitchen to put all the missing pieces together.

"Plum Pudding is a grand event in our family even today," continued Jehanne. "When Richard has time to make one nowadays, it is cut into pieces and distributed via the mails to the rest of the family members!"

(This treasured recipe first appeared in Phyllis Jervey's feature "Menus of the Month" in U.S. LADY Magazine.)

Individual Plum Puddings

(Makes about 8 molds)

One cup seedless raisins; 1½ cups mixed diced candied fruits and peels; ½ cup chopped walnuts 1½ cup sifted all-purpose flour, divided; 2 eggs, beaten; ¾ cup molasses; ½ cup buttermilk; 1½ cups finely chopped suet; ½ cup brandy; 1 cup fine dry bread crumbs; ¾ cup baking soda; ½ tsp. mace; ¼ tsp. each, cloves, allspice, cinnamon; ¾ tsp. salt.

Combine raisins, fruits, peels, walnuts and ½ cup flour. Combine eggs, molasses, buttermilk, suet and brandy. Combine remaining flour, crumbs, baking soda, spices and salt; add to egg mixture. Add floured fruit; mix well. Spoon into well-greased individual molds, filling full. Cover. (If no covers are available for the molds, use aluminum foil.) Set molds on rack in deep kettle; add boiling water to about 1 inch below covers of molds. Cover kettle. Steam 1½ hours. Serve with hard sauce flavored with brandy. Flame at serving with warmed brandy for a dramatic holiday flourish.

Come dessert time at Christmas dinner, the hostess is in a cyclone of coffee and guest decisions on dessert wine or brandy, what a joy to have personalized plum puddings; Make these puddings weeks ahead, wrap separately in foil, freeze for holiday feasting. "To Each His Own" Plump, Plum Pudding!

CANNY COUNSEL by Sagacious Sal

Dear Sal,

Out of marriage, I had an illegitimate child and I wanted to keep the child, but my parents wouldn't let me. This child still haunts me. I know that you can't help me, but do you see anything in my writing that will help me get over the guilt feelings I have.

P.S. Is there anyway I can get the child back?

M.B.

Dear M.B.,

Indirectly, conclusions formed by Margaret Mead, the renowned anthropologist, apply in your case. Margaret Mead found that in primitive, as well as complex societies, women vary considerably in their maternal instinct. In all types of societies, no matter how sophisticated—with some women, it was difficult to keep the child and the mother together. And with other women, it was difficult to separate the mother and child.

What I am saying is that you have a strong maternal drive, with guilt feelings on top of it.

There are many children in this world needing love and understanding. Give some of your love and care to them. It will ease your heartache a little.

Your handwriting shows that your emotions are repressed. Start living in the present and trust in God for the happiness of your child that has been adopted. Counseling would help you.

HAPPY THANKSGIVING FROM STEVENSON SCHOOL

by Gardner Meloy

Students, faculty and staff join with Headmaster Robert U. Ricklefs in wishing all a very fine Thanksgiving Holiday. We at the school like to take time out each season to count our blessings and review some of the benefits of our time.

We are thankful that the growth of independent schools on the West Coast is adding to the strengh of education in America . . . that the Stevenson school has been blessed by strong community support and countless friends who have given time, money, buildings and encouragement to our growth (eg: ten major buildings in eight years) . . . we are thankful for the help from such organizations as the Rosenburg Foundation in San Francisco which gave us a grant to study the unique "Thinking and Writing" program for English students . . . for the Independent Schools talent search program that has allowed us to take four very fine young men from disadvantaged families and give them a good start on their college programs . . . and we are thankful that our board feels that scholarships and faculty salaries are fundamental to the "Stevenson" way of life . . . we are thankful that our building drive, now in the last quarter of the campaign, is aimed at providing the finest academic facilities available to prep students in the West . . . we are thankful that so many men have joined us in preparing a special school of economics (to match our thinking and writing program) to be dedicated this summer—and to be devoted to study and praise of our most successful economic system that has made America great—the pros of capitalism . . . we are thankful that so many fine teachers have dedicated themselves to the demands of prep education—men like retired officers Admiral Goodwin, Admiral Pullen, Captain Chappell, Captain Schultz, Colonel Houghton, Colonel Hamilton and Colonel Kraus—persons like Jerome Fenton, a master teacher, and Charles Dillaway, the Arnold Bowhays, Dr. Denton Rebok and our good pastor, "Coach" Wilson—the ladies who join us daily in teaching with their special skills in language and science, Mrs. Burr, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Kalmbach, Mrs. Moody, Mrs. Morgner, Mrs. Vargas . . . and those devoted young men and their families who coach, teach and counsel the students as they live on campus . . . our administrators . . . our staff—indeed the thanks can never really end, new and old alike, for the "first line" in education is the counselor and teacher . . .

And a note of thanks for the students . . . for their records, studies loyalty and drive . . . the future leaders of America . . , we can thank Larry Kuechler and his countless committees, the teams with their winning seasons, the community service such as with the Community Chest, Viet Nam soap drives, leadership conferences, and all the other projects that make up the vital and live community that is RLS.

And in final Thanksgiving Day . . . that could go on with special notes for pages . . . we are thankful that one man had a dream that education of young men—our leaders of tomorrow—was not a matter of chance but a unique opportunity for educators in a specialized field . . . we are thankful that Bob Ricklefs had that dream which has come true . . .

CARMEL VALLEY MANOR

The works of the French Israeli painter, Issan Engel, are currently being shown at the Manor. Mr. Engel was born in Haifa and served two years with the Israeli Air Force. He began to study painting seriously after the war at the Jerusalem Academy for Applied Art and the Bezalel School of Arts and Crafts. In 1956 he went to France to study stage design in Strasbourg and his first European exhibition was held there. He became identified with the young painters of the School of Paris when he went there in 1957 and several exhibitions of his work were held in France and Italy during the next four or five years. His first New York showing was in 1961 and the local exhibit is the first time his paintings have been seen on the Monterey Peninsula. Some paintings can be purchased—the desk has the list.

The Manor Store is now displaying a sample of an attractive Christmas card with a color print of a familiar Manor scene. The sketch was done by Mary Lansdowne, the daughter of Mrs. Louise Grigsby. Orders are now being taken.

HACIENDA CARMEL
Carmel Valley

Friends of Hacienda Carmel residents will soon be receiving notes on stationery illustrated by Charlotte Morton, a Carmel artist, well known for her steel engraving style sketches of local views, buildings and Carmel charm spots. Two views sketched by Miss Morton show the entrance facade of Casa Central and a view from the dining room across the heated swimming pool to the Santa Lucia Mountains. Anyone interested in these illustrated note papers may purchase them at the desk in Casa Central. Christmas greeting cards with deckle-edge envelopes are also available with Miss Morton's sketches and are proving to be popular with residents and non-residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Boyd of Hacienda Carmel recently returned from a four-month trip to Europe and the British Isles. While visiting relatives and friends in Ireland, the Boyds enjoyed being host at a showing of "The Sound of Music." Mr. Boyd, a number of whose paintings are on exhibit at the New Valley Cinema in the Mid-Valley Shopping Center, had his "eye out" for future paintings. Hal

Regine Crispin Is A Superb Artist

by John Upton

French dramatic soprano Regine Crespin warmed the cockles of our hearts last week in Sunset Center auditorium. In a tastefully confected program of French and German songs in the 19th and 20th centuries, she displayed the opulent and beautifully controlled voice that has prompted critics to nominate her as the successor to Lotte Lehmann.

Miss Crespin is at her best—and her best is superb—in the haunting, rather sorrowful landscape of German lieder. She demonstrated this to a capacity audience with Robert Schumann's "Poems by Mary Stuart," that marvelous romantic collaboration by the Scottish queen, destined to die under the executioner's axe, and the fanatic pianist who was headed for insanity. In this mid-19th-century group of songs there is a curious marriage of German baroque and a weird, twisted foretaste of contemporary atonality, and the soloist and her impeccable accompanist, George Trovillo, made us see how it all fitted together.

Two of these were especially effective: "On the Birth of Her Son," where a kind of stately saraband moves beneath the soaring melodic line of the voice, and "Farewell to France," rich and lyrical and filled with harmonic surprises. Miss Crespin sang them both with great taste and style.

There are people who find Hugo Wolf boring and, until last week, I thought I was one of their number; but it took only one of Miss Crespin's thoughtfully chosen songs by the 19th century Austrian composer to convert me. This was "Silent Love," from the Eichendorff series: a brief, quite simple musical statement that is so loaded with controlled emotion that if it continued for eight more bars it would be unbearable. The same is very nearly true of "The Tomb of Anacreon," from the Goethe series. With her warm and effortless singing of these understated musical fragments, Miss Crespin may well have made a great many converts last week.

Wolf's "The Abandoned Servant-Girl," from the Morike series, is, in a way, a showpiece for the soloist, who must feel her way rather carefully up and down ladders of whole tones and diminished intervals that are stationed in unexpected places. Perhaps for this reason it is less effective as musical entertainment than some of the other Wolf songs. One feels that it was written for the pleasure of musicians rather than for the enjoyment of the layman. Miss Crespin seemed to enjoy it, and she never missed a stop.

"Walking" and "The Gardener," both from the Morike series, were bright and gay and not particularly memorable. "I Have a Lover in Penna," from the Italian Songbook, was the Hugo Wolf song as I had remembered it before my conversion: jocose, over-cute, and rather noisy. Miss Crespin did these with great spirit and dash, and certainly made them seem likable.

Following as they did on the heels of the German songs, the Gabriel Faure group sounded light and cheerful and possibly even naive. Miss Crespin contributed — intentionally, I'm sure—to this effect in two of them by singing in such a starry-eyed way that it was easy to believe she was about 12 years old. In "The Secret" she managed to perform in a beautifully lyrical fashion while at the same time giving the impression of a lonely little girl singing to her dolls. In somewhat the same way, she brought a lilting folk-song quality to "At the Water's Edge."

Let it be said, at once, that Regine Crespin is a consummate artist with power and taste and a great richness of voice, who is probably incapable of singing anything badly. It seems somehow necessary to make this statement in order to emphasize the fact that the following strictures are aimed not at the performer but at the program.

The four "Jewish Poems" by Darius Milhaud are, to my mind, far below the composer's usual standard. They are, on the whole, unattractive and graceless; they seem to consist mostly of sharp corners and awkward little leaps into the air. Perhaps these compositions would be more endearing as experimental instrumental pieces. For the human voice, and particularly for a woman's, they are disastrous. One of this series, "Nursemaid's Song," introduces the addtional crime of political art (or artistic politics). It is patently (yawn) designed to attract young people to Israel, where they can become farmers and. . .

The remaining group of songs, "Chansons du Monsieur Bleu," by Manuel Rosenthal, was not bad; it was simply inappropriate. These little vignettes deal largely with the opinions of a cheeky little boy —"L'elephant a fait pipi dans sa culotte"—and the adventures of some mice who drink gin. Miss Crespin sang these with all the charm in the world; but I kept seeing her standing on the stage of a cheap London music hall, and I was saddened.

The Carmel Music Society is to be congratulated for having given us a really memorable evening in the company of a superb artist. Regine Crespin has the stuff of genius, and if she should ever sing in these purlieus again I shall be first in line, muttering, "Hugo Wolf, like Bird, lives!"

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

"There is no wisdom nor understanding nor counsel against the Lord."

This is the Golden text of this week's Christian Science Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday. Title of the lesson is, "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced."

The responsive reading is made up of Scriptural passages from Matthew, describing Jesus' forthright resistance to the three satanic temptations that came to him in the wilderness.

Selections from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following:

"Truth has no consciousness of error. Love has no sense of hatred. Life has no partnership with death. Truth, Life, and Love are a law of annihilation to everything unlike themselves, because they declare nothing except God."

NEIGHBORHOOD CENTER SHOW

by Rozika Vitarious

New Monterey Neighborhood Center Gallery is displaying work of Patricia Carey and William Rabinovitch—a wonderful collection of drawings, charcoal studies and compositions.

Miss Carey's work shows her passion to reach downward and find the reality, or the essence, of things and human beings deep beyond the external surface. This search, with the mature artist's always manifested sharp intellect and spirit, is the main characteristic of her work.

Most of her displayed drawings are self-portraits. One is called "Hungary," created in 1956. Her involvement in that nation's tragic uprising is apparent through the suffering and grieving expression on the face. Another large charcoal composition, bearing the same title, is a better approach to the greatness of her subject. This one represents any enchained human figure trying to break bones and muscles rather than passively accept imposed limitation. "Sombre of woman" is done in an introspective mood in which Miss Carey dissects a woman's experiences with powerful hands. Here she achieves an expression of an exquisite beauty. The third of her compositions is a reclining abstract figure, half skeleton half muscles, expressed in strong three-dimensional terms.

These three tragic Pat Carey compositions involve viewers as participants. They are a symbol of everyone's human condition expressed with striking intensity and mastery. They are a part of a cherished project of hers "a big mural which will depict the power and limitation of the human condition, the passion and grief without religious or political context." She looks upon life as a "great adventure in which we are all engaged together."

I missed the presence of her sculptures and oil paintings in the exhibition, which would convey a more complete picture of her exceptional talent and personality.

William Rabinovitch is represented by three large compositions. They are fascinating in their proportion, richness and colors. Through them the viewer is facing a conscious young painter who is, in spirit, nearer to the future than to the present.

Strange and exciting imagery projects itself through his compositions. He used two-dimensional and more complex shapes to establish his uncommon pictorial planes. These shapes, as details, stand by themselves for complete compositions.

The viewer has to explore closely every detail in order to seize the richness and meaning and relationship of them. Indeed, too much is told by every painting, not in story but in intensity and dynamism. Somehow Rabinovitch captures the viewer's feeling and instinctively opens white spaces in these compositions. By doing so, he provides a feeling of looking far into and beyond the painting. Therefore, somehow, one feels that one possesses the painting, it is a part of one's life.

This is not a searched or studied form for effect, it is a part of his creative power and as far as I know it is an invention in easel painting.

It is obvious that he is concerned with colors—powerful and forceful, most of them primary. It seems to be a logical selection for his primary colors. His blaikish-red and olive greens forming a strange contrast with the brillance of his primary colors. His blackish-red oval shape on his "Egyptian Portrait" suggests, in itself, blood and tragedy.

His "Pussycat," on first impression, seems a joyful composition of human heads, persons, animals and flowers but the persisting presence of dozens of crosses and an outreaching black hand destroys the first impression. He says, "It symbolizes a sort of spiritual concern which accompanies every reality."

His art is strong and new and individual, springing out of his personality through indomitable power and is exciting, presenting the possibility of being a witness of his development.

Wood block prints by Gildardo Uribe were viewed with interest early this week by those who attended an exhibition of the Mexican artist's work at the home of Mrs. Edward Kuster in Carmel Valley. The young artist, whose talent was recognized and fostered by Gilbert and Louise Boyer while they were associated with the Laubach literacy project in Valle de Bravo, Mexico, was present to meet guests. It is to be hoped that another show of his work will be given while he is staying here with the Boyers.

Yuletide at Montalvo will be on December 2, 3 and 4 from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. The annual festival is a fund raising event for the cultural center situated in Saratoga. Among the hundreds of original works of art offered for sale will be creations by Malcolm Moran and Donald Buby of Gallery Carmel, Loet van der Veen of Big Sur and Mrs. Harold S. Pullen of Monterey.

An exhibition of the work of Zdenek Rada opens on December 1 at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art Association's gallery on Lincoln Street south of Ocean Avenue.

The Professional Golfers' Association has approved Spyglass Hill as one of the three Pebble Beach golf courses for the 26th Annual Bing Crosby National Pro-Amateur golf tournament January 19-22. Spyglass Hill will take the place of Monterey Peninsula Country Club which has been used in the past as one of the three golf courses. Spyglass Hill is 6,972 yards long from the championship tees, 225 yards longer than Pebble Beach, and should provide a real test for the professionals.

The Northern California Professional Golfers' Association Match Play Championship will be played over the four Pebble Beach Golf courses. The first two rounds will be played Monday at Monterey Peninsula Country Club. The next two rounds will be played on Tuesday at Cypress Point. The next round will be played on Wednesday at Spyglass Hill and the finals at Pebble Beach on December 1. Dick Lundahl, the golf professional from Sharon Heights Golf and Country Club is the defending champion.

What's Going On . . .

Wright, publicity chairman for the recreational activities committee, reports.

CANTERBURY WOODS
Pacific Grove

Thanksgiving will include many friends and relatives visiting residents at Canterbury Woods today. Dinner will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The Residence Council announces a Christmas program, including the Cherubs, a chorus of childrens voices—on December 22, at 4 p.m. in the Lounge.

On December 24 at 8:30 p.m., St. Mary's Choir will sing Christmas carols in the Lounge and the Medical Center for the enjoyment of all residents.

A Holy Communion Service will be offered in the Chapel on the evening of December 24 at 9:30 p.m.

FOREST HILL MANOR
Pacific Grove

Perhaps Forest Hill Manor may not boast an artists' colony, yet a number of residents are qualified to become a nucleus of such. The medium and style of the gifted members vary. For instance—Mrs. Putnam works with oil paints while Miss Thomas prefers water color. Miss Barnard paints in both oil and water color, with a specialty in delicate desert scenes. Miss Carter has a flair for commercial art while Miss Treat works on a basis of applied art. Mrs. Dupuis likes water color and oil and does portraits, as does Mrs. Steeves. Mrs. Dunning's watercolors compete with her china painting for beauty. Not dependent upon pen, pencil or brush, Mrs. Davidson has a reputation for making choice party and tray favors, and prepares attractive package wrapping.

Mrs. Evelyn Miller, Forest Hill Manor administrator, is responsible for many clever black and white sketches which often illustrate issues of Manor-isms, the monthly bulletin. But especially noteworthy is a display which she and her husband set up in the Manor Lobby each year at Christmastime. This is a remarkably designed miniature house complete with diminutive handmade furniture, electric lights all ablaze, a Christmas feast on the table with miniature members of a family gathered around.

Art, did you say? Forest Hill Manor has it.

PINPOINT PROFILE
PHOEBE W. HOFFMAN
(Mrs. J. Ogden Hoffman)

From Phoebe we learned that the Hoffman family is one of the oldest families in New York. Her ancestors came to this country in 1656 and she and her husband, Commander J. Ogden Hoffman, are cousins.

At the present time Commander and Mrs. Hoffman are making their home at Canterbury Woods. She is a graduate of Miss Irwin's School in Philadelphia. In 1917, Phoebe won the Browning Society (Philadelphia) medal for poetry and her one-act play "Martha's Mourning" won her a prize.

A number of other one-act plays were published and produced in this country and the British Isles. The Orisis Players, an itinerant women's group, included "Martha's Mourning" in their repertory with Shakespeare and Bernard Shaw.

In 1930, while studying playwriting at Columbia University, Phoebe wrote several three-act plays. However, most of her later works have been in poetry. Many of these poems have been published in numerous small magazines, anthologies and newspapers, including The Carmel Pine Cone, San Francisco Examiner and New York Times and Tribune—just to name a few. She is especially proud of the fact that she is a member of the American Poetry Society.

Commander Hoffman (Class of 1910-Annapolis) is at present in the Medical Center at Canterbury Woods. His last tour of duty was at Tiburon Net Depot, supervising the making of nets for San Francisco Harbor during World War II. Upon his retirement from the Navy, some 20 years ago, he took a course in story writing at the University of Oklahoma. He, too, has had several articles published, many of which were accepted by the United States Naval Institute Proceedings, a monthly magazine for Navy personnel.

Phoebe Hoffman is a pet lover, as can be readily noted in a poem published in 1961. This poem received honorable mention in a Dog Poem Contest:

CHARLATAN

He begs a charlatan Can we Refuse a dog? St. Francis knew.
We laugh and feed him, a small fee.
Patting him we pat our ego too.
Does love or hunger make him clown?
He gives his best. Do we perceive
Our Blessings? Or do we gulp them down,
Fumbling a grace we half-believe?
His faith is like an opening door.
A pulse that never can quite close.
Artery through which love must pour.
Untold he comes. Untold he knows.

(American Bard, Winter 1961, honorable mention in Dog Poem Contest).

Valley Writer Publishes Book

by Marjorie Haller

The locale of Noriko's two conflicting worlds makes this charming story of particular interest to Monterey Peninsula readers. The little Nisei, who goes to college in Berkeley after her younger years in Monterey, has a problem which is perhaps not an unusual one. Her Japan-born father clings to his Old World ways. She is an American girl by inclination and education, and is in love with a young Nisei dental student. As a graduation gift, her father takes her to visit his old home in Japan, but this proves to be part of a plan to return her to the kind of life he remembers. Noriko learns that he wants to arrange a marriage for her with a young farmer. She is too much American not to revolt, and with much difficulty she finds her own solution.

Although this work is considered by its publishers to be for "older girls," the author, who lives in Carmel Valley, has described Point Lobos, Carmel, Monterey, the beaches and the Seventeen Mile Drive delightfully, as it is seen through the eyes of a visitor to our area. It makes delightful reading for some not-so-young adults as well.

(The Two Worlds of Noriko, by Vivian Breck; Doubleday & Company, Inc. $3.25)

From A Librarian's Notebook

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg, City Librarian

THE VARIETIES OF PSYCHEDELIC EXPERIENCE is by R. E. L. Masters and is an appraisal of this controversial study in human experience. Since the subject is one which is much discussed today, but completely beyond the comprehension of this librarian, it behooves me to merely call it to your attention and quickly go on to more familiar subjects, such as biography. The new one about Chief Justice Earl Warren, which was written by Luther Huston, is called PATHWAY TO JUDGEMENT. This is Warren's life from the standpoint of a seasoned reporter who writes well. Earl Warren was born in Los Angeles in 1891. His father was an employee of the Southern Pacific Railway. Warren went from polite poverty to national prominence, mostly by his own efforts. He yearned toward the Presidency, but satisfied himself with the office of Chief Justice.

THE UNITED STATES NAVY IN WORLD WAR II is a one-volume edition of the naval history of the war, compiled and edited by S. E. Smith. There are many photographs as illustrations and even though the book is very large, the type is clear and well spaced. This note is to encourage the reader who panics at the sight of a five pound book.

THE DIARY OF ANAIS NIN is an edited book forming a first volume from her more than a 150 volume diary in which she kept a record of her daily thoughts and deeds. This one is especially valuable because of the picture it gives of Henry Miller who was a longtime friend of hers.

Some people have trouble getting to sleep, others fall asleep at the drop of an eyelash. The average person spends a third of his life asleep and recent research shows that this time is often spent in mental activity. William Foulkes is on the staff of the University of Wyoming and his recent book on the PSYCHOLOGY OF SLEEP. With special emphasis on the nature and meaning of dreams, the author discusses the mental aspects of sleep. His definition of sleep is "a period of relatively low responsiveness to sensory stimulation and of relatively little goal directed motor activity." So now you know what sleep is.

Carl Bakal wrote a book about THE RIGHT TO BEAR ARMS which might frighten any reader of an earlier century. But today with people being killed by cars, or planes, it seems difficult to arouse the populace to the danger from guns. Yet, since 1900, approximately 750,000 people have been shot and this is several thousand more than have been killed in all of our wars. The assassination of President Kennedy brought the problem violently to the public mind. Since then there have been many attempts to regulate the sale of guns but the public is quickly stirred to fight such legislation. Read The Right To Bear Arms and you will at least have a clear picture of the problem.

Cool nights are upon us, and evenings spent with a good book are a source of quiet satisfaction.

LET US BE THANKFUL - - -

We should be truly grateful for the privilege of living, or planning to live, in the uniquely beautiful Carmel area. In this special community one finds those basic, sought-after qualities that are conducive to happiness: simplicity of living, tranquility, beauty, privacy, and recreation.

For the purchaser who seeks a Carmel "haven" we suggest the following properties:

SIMPLICITY OF LIVING: A convenient corner location for a three-bedroom (or two bedrooms and a study) contemporary rustic home with a lanai-dining room and sheltered patio. Easy-to maintain garden and a distant view of Point Lobos are other assets. Walking distance to the beach and Village simplifies the problem of transportation.

TRANQUILITY: With sunshine filtering through the live oaks and pines into a cozy patio-entry, this nearly-new house invites the lover of peace and quiet in an area of little traffic. Situated on Palou Avenue, among many attractive homes, this one features lavish use of brick, heavy shakes and many custom interior details. Two bedrooms, two baths, dining room, living room with beamed ceiling, and kitchen with built-in units including a refrigerator.

BEAUTY: From every angle, both inside and outside, this choice residential property with its Comstock-built post adobe home has an outlook that is superb . . . a spectacular view from Point Lobos to the Valley Hills. Surrounded by a multitude of valuable trees and shrubs, the house reflects good design, excellent construction and meticulous maintainance by its original owners. Living room with driftwood rustic walls and chalkrock hearth, large family room with copper-hooded fireplace, kitchen with hobby area, two bedrooms, three baths, two-car garage with heated floor, unusually large storage areas, and a heated green house for orchids. Part of the property may be sold as a building site.

PRIVACY: Situated on a sunny knoll overlooking the Carmel Mission, this charming home features a special courtyard for relaxing and appreciating the expansive view. With unimproved property on either side, one is free from close neighbors and noise of traffic. A delightful living room with dark random-width oak floors, wide sills and a double view; two bedrooms, two baths, a small study and a kitchen with dining corner. In immaculate condition, this property is a pleasure to show.

RECREATION: Across from a golf course, this comfortable home can be purchased with $5,000 cash and assumption of the existing loan with the seller carrying a second trust deed. Four bedrooms (or three and a den), two baths, a kitchen with built-in equipment, living room with fireplace, two-car attached garage . . . site area nearly 1/4 acre. Price reduced to $38,500.

Stock Market Notes

By Hugh Hannon

The November issue of First National City Bank of New York's Monthly Economic Letter helps to explain the stock market's reaction to news of automobile production cutbacks. "Anxieties about inflation, so dominant in the thinking of Wall Street and Washington this past Summer, are now giving way to concern about imbalances in the economy. Symptomatic of the shift in sentiment is that some Federal Reserve officials have suddenly begun to de-emphasize talk of a possible tax increase next year. Since housing starts (which influence future demand for household durables) are still headed downward and may not recover for some time to come, the consumer durable goods area may continue at a slackened pace. Chrysler has announced plans for a substantial cut in white-collar personnel in order to reduce costs, while Chairman Donner of General Motors has described the present industry situation as rugged."

This is not the kind of news that leads traders to buy stocks. The building and automotive industries have long been considered as cyclical (their sales change sharply in good and bad times). Stocks go up and down with people's hopes and fears. We seem to be in the fear side of the cycle now. To me this presents a buying opportunity because it is only a matter of time till people start looking at the hope side of the cycle again.

The following quote, from John W. Schultz's article in the November 15 Forbes magazine, is one opinion of what can happen in the next hope side of the cycle. "Sooner or later the Funds can be counted on to begin moving their excess cash reserves into the stock market, as they did after every big cash buildup in the past. But a billion dollars' worth or more (the cash reserves some think the mutual funds have to invest in stocks) of common stock cannot be bought in a hurry. After the funds' liquidation spree in the third quarter of 1962, the process took about two years of generally rising prices."

Wouldn't that be wonderful! Oh to know the first day of that two years!

I learned there was one other foreign passenger, an Englishman in the Soft Class, going to Japan, and when I was permitted to enter the sacred precincts, we soon became friends. He was glad of company and I for space. Furthermore he had baskets of wonderful food from London's gourmet shop, Fortnum & Mason's, and he did not like eating alone! I spent so much time in the Soft Class that the provodnik glowered at me and reminded me surlily where I belonged. To stall him and keep him occupied I asked him to calculate how much it would cost for me to transfer to the Soft Class, and he went into a deep study of his books. When he came back with an amount in rubles, I said "Fine. But I will wait a few more 100 miles when it will be still cheaper." After he had made a couple more calculations further along, he simply gave me up as a bad job.

On the train was a young Russian Intourist guide and he admired the silk scarves I had bought for skiing in Switzerland and found easy to wear on the train. He said his wife had not seen silk in years. After awhile he made what seemed a rather unorthodox suggestion. Would I accept a Soft Class ticket for my scarves? This I agreed to and so travelled the rest of the way in luxury, although my compatriot there felt it extremely, dangerous, and expected me to be put off the train in Siberia—this time blanketed with the usual tradition snow scene!

Finally I was back in my beloved Peking installed in what became my rather celebrated Marco Polo Galleries handling again all the treasures of the Orient. Thank you dear Trans-Siberian!

Rotary Sponsors Music Program

tion of 12 in-the-classroom concerts by musical ensembles from the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra under the direction of John Gosling. The string, brass and woodwind families will be featured with emphasis on acquainting the students with both the instruments used and the music presented.

Edgar Bissantz, president of the Carmel Rotary Club, believes the project will provide an informative and pleasurable listening experience for the children. He also cited the comment made by Dr. Harris Taylor, new superintendent of the Carmel Unified School District, concerning the weakness of the school music program. Bissantz hopes that the classroom concerts will help give students incentive to increase music participation in school programs and serve as a teaching aid. The Rotary Club will finance all aspects of the program.

August Nieto

live in the San Jose area. "But each weekend, we have grandchildren visiting us," Nieto said fondly. "We always build our homes large enough for our grandchildren and children!"

The Nietos live at Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. "Right across from the 13th hole!" golf enthusiast Augie pointed out. "The house backs up almost to the river, and out our back window we can see beautiful poplar and willow trees along the river's edge. Each of our homes has been a little different. With this one, the entire house was designed by Louisa to encircle a beautiful 100-foot oak tree. Thus in the very center of the house is a patio surrounding this tree."

Mrs. Nieto's hobbies are still gourmet cooking with gardening added. And now, she plays golf too! She has been a member of the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services for many years and enjoys MPVS community service work.

Augie Nieto concluded the interview by saying, "Carmel has been very good to us. And we're happy to be in Carmel and take part in its social and civic life."
